ART COLLECTION

The Saxon Hotel, Villas and Spa is a highly respected patron of the arts with an inspired vision of the creative arts. The impressive art collection showcases an eclectic mix of established and emerging artists and includes art and artefacts from Africa, Europe and the East.

The Saxon believes in supporting South Africa's most promising emerging artists and takes pride in displaying the work of our established artists who have gained recognition on the local and international art scene.

The art collection of the original home includes exceptional pieces that tell a story of a life lived with friends. In recent years over 200 original artworks were sourced from various South African artists, representing the largest single corporate art acquisition made in South Africa for interior design purposes, bringing the walls to life and reflecting a vibrant connection with Africa.

SPIER ARTS TRUST | THE SPIER COLLECTION

RICHIE MADYIRA

Richie Madyira explores faith, religion, and the internal conflicts of practicing without self-reflection. His bold, often juxtaposed colours create an ironic harmony that challenges conventional perception. Madyira also reflects on the struggles of immigrants seeking belonging. Based in Philippi, Cape Town, he earned a Diploma from the National Gallery of Zimbabwe Visual Arts Studio in 2007 and has participated in several group exhibitions.

CAMERON PLATTER

Cameron Platter is an interdisciplinary artist. His mixed media works are vivid and explore the notions of consumption and excess and often evoke feelings of fun and play. His work is provocative and controversial and themes include politics, violence, beauty and sex. Platter sometimes incorporates found objects in work i.e. posters, advertisements etc. which represent popular culture in South Africa but which are universally relatable.

KAGISO PATRICK MAUTLOA

Kagiso Pat Mautloa's practice spans a wide range of media and styles, working both figuratively and abstractly in oils and acrylics, while often incorporating found objects, sculptural, and assemblage elements. Inspired by street culture, the evolving city, and its people, Mautloa views objects found in the city as both visually compelling and repositories of daily life—forming the foundation of his work. Born in Ventersdorp, North West Province, he studied at Jubilee Art Centre and Mofolo Park Art Centre. He is a founding member of the Bag Factory Artists' Studio in Newton, Johannesburg, where he continues to work.

BONITA ALICE

Bonita Alice is a Cape Town-based visual artist, born in Johannesburg. She studied at the University of the Witwatersrand and the University of Cape Town, lecturing in Fine Art departments until 2003. After relocating to London in 2007, she returned to South Africa in 2020. Alice's practice explores human-non-human animal relationships, psychology, and environmental issues. She examines the links between collective human dysfunction and environmental degradation, using her work to reflect on the crises of our age.

KUTLWANO MOAGI

Born in Soweto, Kutlwano Moagi lives and works in Johannesburg. He completed a photography learnership at the Market Photo Workshop and is very interested in the inner city of Johannesburg and the changing environment. Besides photography, he is an aspiring jazz musician and is also well known for his murals and states that he would not call it graffiti, but rather street art. As a visual artist, Moagi paints to heal himself

LISETTE FORSYTH

Lisette Forsyth was born in Namibia, Windhoek but now lives and works in Cape Town. She studied Graphic Design at The Cape Technikon and graduated with a diploma, majoring in photography and printmaking. "I paint to fill the need to create. Constantly experimenting with media and subject matter. The compulsion to recycle pushes me towards mixed media. Cape Town and its people provide contradictions and contrasts to work from. Everyday is an inspiration. The need to revel and reflect life's beauty drives me to create. To share the delight in the seemingly ordinary".

BEVERLEY WATSON

This well-known multimedia artist was commissioned to execute 36 large-format, multicolour monotypes to enhance various public areas in the Saxon. These enchanting and technically demanding artworks depict conservation and environmental concerns in an abstracted style which is both informative and visually pleasing.

BAMBO SIBIYA

Bambo Sibiya was born in KwaThema, Springs, near Johannesburg. He has a Certificate in Fine Art from the Mbira School of Music and Design, has a Design certificate and trained and worked at the Artist Proof Studio (APS) where he worked on large scale linocuts for several leading artists. Rich stylistic detail and textures mark his linocuts and drypoint work, through which he explores masculine identity and community on the streets of Johannesburg. general issues affecting women and children in his community influence his work. He questions the roles and contributions of men in households, as men often have to leave their families in order to find work in the cities. Bambo speaks from personal experiences when he comments on how women have to take over the role of a man in their husbands' absence. These women often struggle not only physically, but also emotionally, to overcome traditional barriers.

LINDOKUHLE ZWANE

Lindo Zwane was born in Newcastle, KwaZulu-Natal. He works predominantly in charcoal drawings and painting and printmaking. He studied at Artist Proof Studio where he was also a drawing facilitator. His work is focused around feelings of nostalgia and the process of catharsis. Interested in everyday life, where the future is but also in how the past weaves itself into the present, The challenge being to accept the past and yet acknowledge the present.

PATRICK BONGOY BOKAMBWA

Through his art, Patrick Bongoy takes a closer look at the survival mechanisms that human beings utilise amidst social and industrial problems, specifically the devastation prevalent in the war-ravaged hometown, Kinshasa, Democratic Republic of Congo (DRC). The societal change and deprivation he has witnessed are his primary inspiration. He believes that art can comfort and offer an alternative reality. He uses unconventional materials like rubber, jute, stitching and tar and through the recovery of waste materials such as inner tyre tubes, industrial packaging and textiles, he repurposes and reinterprets waste others discards. Although originally from the DRC, Bongoy now lives and works in Cape Town, South Africa. He obtained a BA in Fine Arts at the Academy of Fine Arts Kinshasa in 2009

QHAMANANDE MASWANA

Qhama Maswana's painted portraits explore beauty, life challenges, and spirituality in Africa. Using detailed brushwork with acrylic and oil, he creates striking imagery that blends hidden folklore and culture with a contemporary perspective. Inspired by the people around him—friends, family, and consenting strangers—Maswana seeks to portray the strength and inner royalty he sees in them. Born in Qonce (King William's Town), Eastern Cape, he now lives and works in Johannesburg. He studied at Lovedale College and earned a National Diploma in Fine Art from the University of Fort Hare in 2015.

MAKHOSANDILE MBUKU

Makhosandile Mbuku is predominantly self-taught, having developed an interest in art while living in close proximity to the vibrant arts community in Cape Town. Primarily known as a painter, many of his works document social elements of various communities and in the same vein, he experiments with surreal and imagined elements that can stand in for communities and people. His artworks are also inspired by his personal challenges and experiences and address issues of identity, culture and tradition. Living and working in Cape Town, Mbuku attended workshops and residency at the Arts and Media Access Centre, Cape Town (2006)

SPIER ARTS TRUST | THE CREATIVE BLOCK

The Creative Block is a platform that supports professional South African artists by giving them blank blocks to transform in any medium. Submitted artworks are reviewed, and those that meet the quality criteria are purchased, providing artists with an important and immediate source of income. Each block includes a short artist biography.

The project encourages artistic exploration, offers valuable exposure to collectors worldwide, and helps many artists sustain full-time careers. Collectors can start building an art collection on any budget, discovering diverse artists through unique, original blocks. These Creative Blocks are available for purchase by Saxon guests.

EVERARD READ

DYLAN LEWIS

Dylan Lewis, born in 1964 and raised in a highly artistic South African family, began his career as a painter before moving into sculpture. He is widely regarded as one of the leading sculptors of the animal form, first gaining prominence for his powerful big cat works. More recently, he has explored the human figure to examine our connection with the wild within. His international career spans over two decades, with exhibitions in Paris, Sydney, Toronto, Houston and San Francisco, as well as multiple solo shows in London — including rare solo auctions at Christie’s London, an honour held by few living artists.

SPEELMAN MAHLANGU

Born in Germiston, Mahlangu studied sculpture and drawing at the Katlehong Art Centre. He exhibited widely across South Africa and contributed to the Kwa Ndebele Mural Design project. His work, inspired by Ndebele murals, Egyptian hieroglyphics, and African folklore, explores traditional life, music, rituals, and spiritual themes. His works are held in private and public collections, including the Frankfurt Museum of Ethnology and the Norval Foundation in Cape Town. Mahlangu passed away suddenly in October 2004, leaving behind his wife Gertrude and one son. Before his death, he completed a body of monumental sculpture for bronze casting and exhibition at Everard Read Cape Town.

LIONEL SMIT

Lionel Smit is renowned for his monumental portrait paintings and bronzes exploring identity within a South African and global context. Best known for his depictions of women from the Cape Malay community, his work is defined by a powerful dialogue between sculpture and painting and by his distinctive, richly layered patinas.

Based in Somerset West, Cape Town, Smit has exhibited internationally, including at the National Portrait Gallery, where he received the Viewer’s Choice Award.

ANGUS TAYLOR

Angus Taylor is renowned for his powerful, often monumental sculptures and his bold use of challenging materials. Working with granite, bronze, red jasper, packed earth and slate, he combines traditional craftsmanship with innovative techniques to create works that suggest the human form without directly describing it. Based near Pretoria, Taylor founded Dionysus Sculpture Works over two decades ago, where he refined his moulding and casting expertise, establishing himself as a master craftsman with an international presence.

DEBORAH BELL

Deborah Bell is one of South Africa’s most celebrated contemporary artists, working across painting, printmaking and large-scale bronze sculpture. Her practice explores themes of mortality and immortality, spirit and matter, drawing on rich symbolic references from African, Chinese, Egyptian and European traditions. Known for her stark, contemplative figures and totemic imagery, Bell’s work reflects a deeply philosophical inquiry into the human condition. She has collaborated with leading artists including William Kentridge and Robert Hodgins, and lives and works in Magaliesburg, South Africa.

THE ARTISTS

Hilton Edwards

While Hilton Edwards' deceptively structured, sparse compositions reflect his interest in Vedic teaching, his equally passionate love of African culture can be seen in his use of material, texture and colour. His restrained and controlled canvases introduce a typically contemplative mood to the Saxon Art Collection.

Marcel Greyling

Marcel is a highly talented, multi-award-winning graphic designer. He is also a painter of large, bold and spontaneous abstracts in which the act of painting plays a central role. Nine of his abstracts were selected for the Saxon Art Collection, in recognition of the controlled vibrancy they introduced into large spaces such as the main dining areas.

Fiona Rowett

Fiona Rowett is a talented graduate from the Michaelis School of Fine Art, the Fine Arts Department of the University of Cape Town, which has along and proud tradition of producing outstanding graduates. Fiona Rowett, a well-established artist, has contributed to numerous art exhibitions since the 1980s. Her distinctive abstracts are often inspired by landscapes and are characterised by a sensitive use of colour. She works intuitively, creating layers of evocative and rich shapes, textures and colours.

Errol Westoll

Close on 60 of this up-and-coming artist's limited-edition photo-images have been selected for the Saxon Art Collection. This painter-photographer's unusual, evocative photographs of seashore-related subjects are skilfully crafted in terms of composition, colour and contrast to produce the most intriguing abstract artworks.

Roswitha von Glehn

Roswitha was born in Riga, Latvia, and came to South Africa in 1952. A student of George Boys and Karin Jaroszynska, she became established as a consummate water-colourist. The Saxon Art Collection features her woodcuts created in the 1970s and 1980s. These highly stylised depictions of people, plants and animals received many awards at international exhibitions in Switzerland, Germany, France, Spain and the USA.

Titia Ballot

One of South Africa's pre-eminent master-etchers, Titia Ballot has studied, taught and exhibited in many countries and received numerous prestigious awards. The etchings selected for the Saxon Art Collection are evocative of Africa on many levels and in many contexts, from geology to mythology.

Beverley Watson

This well-known multimedia artist was commissioned to execute 36 large-format, multicolour monotypes to enhance various public areas in the Saxon. These enchanting and technically demanding artworks depict conservation and environmental concerns in an abstracted style which is both informative and visually pleasing.

Hannes Harrs

One of the selected artists, the internationally renowned Hannes Harrs, passed away in 2006 and therefore no new works are available in the market. His daughter, Sue Winchester, helped to locate 23-odd works, including his well-known Kuba cloth collages and various works in oils.

Dirk Meerkotter

Two large etchings by Dirk Meerkotter, a highly awarded pioneer of abstract art in South Africa, were selected for the Saxon Art Collection. At that time the artist was already 88 years old and had not produced any new works in recent years. His son, Dirk Meerkotter Jnr, dug deep in his father's art drawers to provide the Saxon with these two superb examples of the master-etcher's art.

Sandile Zulu

The Saxon Art Collection includes 8 commissioned works from Sandile Zulu. His innovative art explores a unique African vision, with fascinating seared, singed, scorched and burnt canvases. Sandile was invited to participate in an art project at the Smithsonian National Gallery of African Art in Washington DC, and was awarded a residency at the Nirox Foundation's prestigious arts centre to work towards this project.
